EVER since the populists of Vermont, sixteen in number, met in "mass convention" at Capital Hall, the secretary and treasurer of the state committee, George E. Holden, has hustled with a persistency worthy of a better cause and has secured the signatures of the 600 voters necessary to insure placing a populist ticket in the field this fail. To be sure, most of those who signed his paper did it to get rid of him, and to get a breathing spell from hearing what "we" are doing and propose to do, but the "we" are doing and propose to do, but the signatures have been obtained just the same.

The Woman's Auxiliary gave a pleasant entertainment at the Keeley League rooms last Friday evening. The programme consisted of reading "Our Wedding Day," by Mrs. F. A. Hayden; reading, "Thanks for What?" Mrs. H. B. Cross, president of the auxiliary; remarks b William Canning, president of the Keeley League, Mrs. D. L. Fuller, Rev. Mr. Jackson and J. G. Wing, Major J. L. Elder recited "Cold, Ain't It?" and J. G. Wing gave "The Irishman's Dream." A brief address by Rev. J. Edward Wright brought the interesting exercises to a close.

ONE curious effect of the western strikes felt in Vermont and elsewhere in the East, is the prospect of a shortage of medicines at the Keeley Institutes. All the institutes in the country obtain their supplies from the parent institute at Dwight, Ill., sixty miles west of Chicago. During all of last week it was impossible to get anything through from there, and managers of institutes who had not a good supply on hand tutes who had not a good supply on hand were very anxious. Manageri Foster has enough in store for immediate use, but should the railroad troubles continue much insured in these companies. This has long been a standing offer, but has never been claimed until recently. Mr. Robbins' buildings in Hancock were burned last fail, and he has been instrumental in having the guilty parties convicted of setting the fire and sent up for a term of years. Of this reward, the Vermont Mutual paid $409, the Union Mutual $69, and the New England $22, in the ratio of their existing risks on the buildings.

JEFFERSON BRUCE died last evening of creeping paralysis, aged sixty-four years. For the past eleven weeks he has been confined to his bed, and for the last five weeks has been unconscious. Mr. Bruce was born in Middlesex, and has resided in Montpelier for the past twenty-five years, where he worked at his trade of wheelwright. His wife died three years ago. He leaves two daughters—Mrs. Frank W. Carver and Mrs. J. V. Sprague; also two grandchildren. The funeral will be held from his late home in Bruce block on Thursday afternoon at two o'clock.

HARRIET K., wife of George M. Scribner, died early last Friday morning at Park Hill Hespital, Roxbury, Mass., from the effects of a surgical operation performed the Saturday previous. Many beautiful homes are to be found within the borders of the village of Montpelier in which the community as a whole takes pride, and which have helped in no small way to enhance the reputation the capital of the state enjoys as being one of the lovellest and most attractive places in New England. For thoroughness of construction, convenience of arrangement, and elegant, though homelike, furnishing and equipment from basement to attic, the residence of O. M. Fisher on State street, erected during the past year, is excelled by none. A little more than a year ago, Mr. Fisher purchased the Sidney P. Redfield property, moved away the old buildings and laid the foundation of the home he occupies to-day. The location of the house is unsurpassed. Situated just at the bend of the Wincoski that has been reproduced upon more than one canvas by artists of note, a charming view is jobtained from the front porch, or from almost any window in the house. Stately spreading elms directly in front of the house shade the front and west side from the glaring sun. The foundations are of granite, as are the walls above grade as high as the windows on the first floor, the remainder of the superstructure being of brick. The roof is slated and fitted with copper gutters. Entering through the front door, the hall is the sitting-room, finished in ash, with a cosy circular window that commands a view of the entire street east. The fireplace in this room is of browned areas willing at the late of the hall street east. The fireplace in this ro bronze-green tiling. At the left of the hall is the library and parlor, connected with folding doors. The elegant furnishings of these rooms are from the Paine Furniture Company and Keeler & Co., Boston. of these rooms are from the Paine Furniture Company and Keeler & Co., Boston. Every window in the house is fitted with plate glass, and the handsome stair and mantel work, done by Mr. Sanborn of West Randolph, would be hard to improve upon. The entire house is wired for electric lights and piped for gas, both of which are used. The gas fixtures are from Waterbury & McKenna, Boston. The dining-room is finished in cherry. Under a rich-looking mantel is a fireplace of tea-pot brown tile, which harmonizes perfectly with the cherry finish. Between the dining-room and kitchen, which is finished in Georgia pine, is the butler's pantry, fitted with a porcelain dish-washer, with hot and cold water. The entrance from the west side of the house is from under a portectore, as the floor of the barn at the rear of the house. The latter is finished and furnished in a way to suggest comfort for dumb animals. A solid wall of granite is laid at the rear of the barn, beyond which is a spring of cold water for drinking and culinary purposes, elevated enough so that it is piped to the second story of the house. In the basement is the laundry with set tubs, coal bins, etc., and the hearing apparatus. The house is heated by the Spence hot. coal bins, etc., and the heating apparatus. The house is heated by the Spence hot-water system, which works to perfection and in praise of which Mr. Fisher cannot say enough. The drainage of all the buildings is perfect. In addition to an independent drain to the river, a blind drain is laid en-tirely around the house and under all the partitions, to the main sewer. On the second story of the house is the library chamber fur-nished in black walnut, with open plumbing nished in black wainut, with open plumbing in this and every room. The guest chamber has mahogany furniture, with white silk draperies and hot and cold water. Across the hall the rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Fisher are fitted with beautiful bird's-eve maple furniture, with yellow silk drapings. At the rear is the bath-room, with porcelain tubs, and both spring and Berlin water. In the attic is the tank room, electric light closet, fur closet lined with cedar, trunk room, etc. While Mr. and Mrs. Fisher have no desire to make any ostentations display, the mato make any ostentatious display, the ma-terial put into the building and the furnish-ings have been the best that money could ings have been the best that money could buy. Wherever it was in any way practicable, Mr. Fisher has patronized Montpeller merchants and dealers, and has hired his help right here at home. While Mrs. Fisher modestly disclaims the credit of the architecture of the building, as awarded her by her husband, the quiet and excellent taste shown in the arrangement of every room that blends so perfectly into a harmonious whole, the unexcelled sanitary arrangements, and the many conveniences and laxuries that cannot be enumerated in this luxuries that cannot be enumerated in this brief and imperfect description of their new home, are the best evidence that without her guiding hand, fertile brain and refined

GRANITE INDUSTRY RACE-PACE AND TROT-PURSE $50.

The last two heats of this race were trotted Thursday morning.

No accidents of note marred the pleasure of the day, and few intoxicated men were seen. The fireworks in the evening were a fitting close to a first-class celebration. To the enterprise of H. A. Rugg, manager of the trotting park, is largely due the success of the programme carried out at the trotting park, which was one of the largest given in New England, and was varied to meet the wants of all. The track, having been altered, was not in the condition intended by the manager, and under these considerations it was impossible for "Factory Boy" to break the state record. He will make another attempt on the same track next Friday, with better chances of success. Manager Rugg announced to the public his inability to farnish a band as advertised. This was due to the fact that some of the members of the Granite City Band had joined the new Barre Cornet Band. This explanation was satisfactory to everybody. The crowd was the largest ever upon the grounds and grand stand, with the exception of the day Forepaugh's circus was in Barre, and there was a noticeable lack of the kicking customary on such occasions. Excellent order was maintained and no arrests were made. Rev. S. N. Jackson of Kingston, P. Q., visited Dr. J. Holmes Jackson and Dr. J.
